Leivonmäki National Park, in Joutsa, is an ideal destination for a family outing. Easy, well-marked trails lead visitors to scenic shores and along esker ridges. Haapasuo, in the southern part of the park, is the best example of a well-preserved natural bog in Central Finland.

Hiking in the woodland home of the nightjar

Leivonmäki's longer trails start from the car park at Selänpohja and lead along pine-clad esker ridges to the shores of Lake Ruta-järvi. The long peninsula of Joutsniemi has formed where a narrow esker ridge extends into the lake. This is an ideal area for rowing and canoeing. In the northern part of the park the Koskikaran Kierros trail runs past scenic river rapids. In the south, visitors can sense the sights, sounds and scents of Haapasuo Bog, and walk round the Luupää geological trail. On light nights in early summer the distinctive whirring mating calls of nightjars can be heard near the Harujärvi cooking shelter. Later in the summer visitors can pick tasty mushrooms, lingonberries and cloudberries in the park. Leivonmäki's diverse natural features and accessible location make the park an ideal location for nature study trips all year round.
